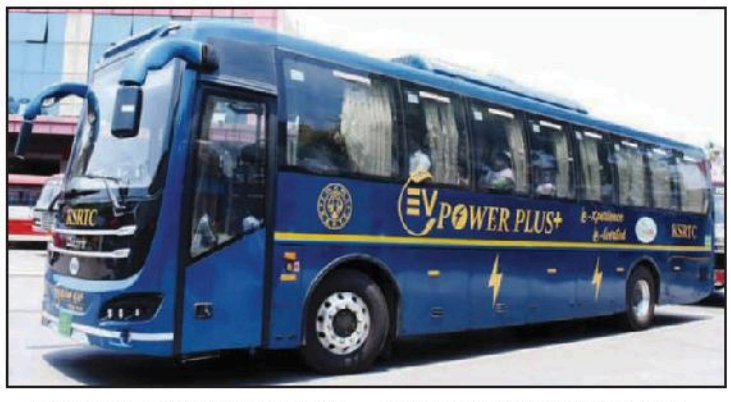
KSRTC to introduce 100 electric buses for Mysuru city service

Mysuru, Apr. 6 (MTY, TRR & BCT)- In a major step towards curbing environmental pollution and fostering a cleaner urban atmosphere, the Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) is set to introduce electric buses (e-buses) within Mysuru city limits. This move aligns with the growing adoption of electric vehicles nationwide, including in the private sector.

KSRTC has already launched successful electric bus services under the brand "Power Plus," operating between major cities such as Bengaluru and Mysuru. These zero-emission, noise-free and high-comfort buses have received an overwhelming public response, prompting the Corporation to deploy additional units on intercity routes.



Following KSRTC's success, the Bengaluru Metropolitan Transport Corporation (BMTC) entered into an agreement with a private firm to operate electric buses in the capital. BMTC's electric fleet, in operation for the past two years, has become a crucial component of its strategy to reduce reliance on fossil fuel-powered vehicles and combat rising air pollution levels.

Mysuru is next in line for rollout

Recognising Mysuru as one of Karnataka's fastest-growing cities — with a high footfall of tourists and daily commuters — the KSRTC central office has decided to allocate 100 electric buses to the city.

HOW LACK OF SLEEP IMPACTS YOUR WAISTLINE AND BLOOD SUGAR LEVELS: A recent national survey on sleep patterns found that 59% of Indians get less than six hours of sound sleep every day. But it's not just a matter of getting enough rest. Sleeping late and less than five hours a day can impact your health in various ways.

Poor sleep quality and sleep deprivation are two critical factors that contribute to conditions like Type 2 diabetes, obesity, polycystic ovary syndrome (PCOS), and fatty liver disease. Sleep deprivation, defined as getting less than 7-8 hours of sleep, and disrupted sleep quality, where a person frequently wakes up at night, both increase the risk of metabolic disorders. When sleep is compromised, the body produces excess cortisol, a stress hormone that heightens insulin resistance and increases the risk of diabetes. Additionally, hormonal imbalances occur — ghrelin (the hunger hormone) rises while leptin (which signals fullness) decreases, leading to increased appetite and cravings for high-calorie foods. Sleep deprivation also triggers inflammation and oxidative stress, further contributing to metabolic dysfunction.

While chronic sleep deprivation has a more profound impact, some studies indicate that even one night of poor sleep can elevate cortisol levels which, in turn, increases insulin resistance and the risk of diabetes.

While getting adequate sleep is beneficial, the timing of sleep also matters. Sleeping after midnight disrupts the circadian rhythm which regulates physiological processes, including sleep, hormone secretion, and metabolism. It helps control insulin sensitivity and glucose metabolism. When disrupted — due to irregular sleep schedules, shift work, or sleeping late — metabolic processes get impaired, leading to increased risks of diabetes and obesity.

Good sleep hygiene involves adopting healthy habits that promote restful sleep. Some effective strategies include:

1. Maintaining a consistent sleep schedule: Going to bed and waking up at the same time every day, even on weekends, helps regulate the body's internal clock.

2. Creating a comfortable sleep environment: Keeping the bedroom dark, quiet, and cool can enhance sleep quality. Using blackout curtains, white noise machines, and comfortable bedding can help.

3. Avoiding stimulants before bedtime: Caffeine, nicotine, and heavy meals should be avoided in the evening to prevent sleep disturbances.

4. Engaging in relaxation techniques: Meditation, deep breathing exercises, or light stretching before bed can help relax the mind and body.

5. Getting regular physical activity: Exercising during the day promotes bettersleep, but vigorous workouts should be avoided close to bedtime.

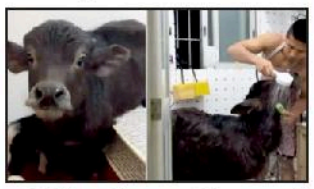
Wavy traffic lines to slow down motorists

Montgomery: Authorities in Montgomery Township, Pennsylvania, have introduced wavy lane patterns on streets in an effort to slow down traffic.

Driving along Gray Lane in Montgomery for the first time must be quite the trip, both literally and figuratively because the regular lane patterns have been replaced by wavy, zig-zag lines that look like they were painted by a drunk. But they are wavy by design. Police sources said that the "traffic-calming measures" were installed in response to numerous complaints about certain streets being used as "speedways".

Board of Supervisors Vice Chair Annette Long claims that this is the solution to the speeding on Grays Lane. In the past, speed bumps were considered, but they were considered incompatible with the steep gradient of the street.

Man keeps getting evicted from apartments



Beijing: Chen, a 30-year-old retired boxer who currently works as a part-time fitness and boxing coach from Foshan, China's Guangdong Province, has become an overnight celebrity because of his unusual house pet.

Back in January, Chen bought himself a buffalo calf as a pet. He claims the animal is a constant reminder that he should work hard to reach his life goals, but at the same time, he should take caution not to become a workhorse. But Chen's unusual choice for a pet has landed him in hot water with at least two landlords. He is currently looking for another place to rent.

Viral photos and videos on social media show the 30-year-old former boxer cleaning and feeding the four-month-old calf, dressing it up and taking it out for walks.

Although he recently got evicted from a rented apartment for the second time in just three months, Chen claims that he has no intention of giving up on Bull Demon King.

Who will rectify this live power line?

Sir,

Yesterday, while I was waiting at the traffic signal near

Madhus Tyre Centre on Hunsur Road, I noticed that the switchboard cover on the road divider was broken. The live power line inside is completely exposed and easily accessible — even to children.

This has been lying in the same condition for several days, yet no one seems to have taken note or responsibility. My question is: Who is responsible for addressing this? Is it under the jurisdiction of CESC or the MCC?

I sincerely urge the authorities to take immediate action. If the unit is defunct, it should at least be removed to prevent any potential accidents. This is a serious safety hazard that needs urgent attention before any mishap occurs.

Mysuru, Apr. 6 (PM&KS)- City's 5th Additional District and Sessions Court has sentenced a man to five years imprisonment besides imposing a fine of Rs. 25,000 after he was found guilty of murdering his colleague, who had abused his mother using foul language.

The man, who was sentenced is Angrez Ram, a native of Evad village, Jahel taluk, Nagpur district in Rajasthan, who was working as a stone polisher at Avishkar Stone Factory at Tandya Industrial Area in Nanjangud. The victim is Suresh, colleague of Ram, who was his relative.

Hike in diesel price

Indefinite lorry strike from Apr. 14 midnight

Bengaluru, Apr. 6 (Agencies, BLU& BS)- Condemning the hike in diesel price, Lorry Owners Association has called for a State-wide indefinite strike from Apr. 15 (Apr. 14 midnight). This would affect the transportation of goods, with the lorries, all types of goods vehicles, commercial category vehicles including airport taxis among others staying off from the roads.

The State Government that has been consistently effecting the hike in prices, starting from KSRTC bus fare, Metro fare, electricity tariff and milk, earning the wrath of the general public, has increased the diesel price by Rs. 2 per litre. This follows an increase in sales tax on diesel since Tuesday (Apr. 1), raising it from 18.44% to 21.17%.

Following the hike in diesel price, the Commercial Vehicle Owners Association held a meeting at a private hotel in Chamarajpet yesterday, that decided to go on strike from Apr. 14 midnight itself.

Speaking to media persons in this regard, G.R. Shanmukhappa, the President of the Federation of Karnataka State Lorry Owners and Agents Association (FKSLOAA), said that the diesel rate has collectively gone up by Rs. 5 in a short span of 7 months, putting the owners of commercial vehicles including lorries in a fix.

"Let them provide whatever freebies they want, but it is wrong to increase the prices at the cost of others. The strike has been called seeking fulfilment of demands related to fitness fees, border check-post and diesel price. The day, Apr. 14, coincides with the birth anniversary of Dr. B.R. Ambedkar. We will be launching our struggle on the same midnight and won't resume the services within the State, until our demands were met," warned Shanmukhappa.

Category of vehicles

Following the call for strike, the categories of goods and commercial vehicles that will be suspending their services are mentioned as below:

Airport taxi, sand and stone lorries and goods vehicles totalling 6 lakh vehicles. The lorries transporting rice, petrol and diesel containers will also join the strike, with the Drivers Association too announcing their support for the strike. A total of 9 lakh commercial vehicles will also suspend their services.

Meeting in Mysuru tomorrow

The Mysuru District Lorry Owners Association has convened a meeting tomorrow (Apr. 7) to discuss about the preparations to be made for the strike.

Association President B. Kodandaramu told Star of Mysore, a meeting of lorry owners has been called at 12 noon at Old RMC premises in Bamboo Bazaar.

There are about 9,000 lorries in the district, the owners of whom are expected to attend the meeting. The opinions of lorry owners will be collected at the meeting, Kodandaramu added.

KSRTC to introduce 100 electric buses

A tender for the supply of these buses has already been floated and is in its final stages. The first batch is expected to arrive by May and will be introduced in phases.

Private companies have secured tenders to supply the e-buses, which will be operated on routes covering daily distances of 180 to 220 km. The KSRTC central office has instructed the Mysuru City Division to identify appropriate routes that meet these criteria.

Preliminary planning is already underway, with several key routes under consideration. These include connections from the city bus terminal to Chamundi Hill, J.P. Nagar, L&T, Yelwal, KRS, Palahalli, Srirangapatna and Nanjangud.

Further route assessments are ongoing and a comprehensive report is expected to be submitted to the KSRTC central office by the end of the month.

Bannimantap Depot as a hub

To support this transition, the Bannimantap Bus Depot — previously closed after the merger of the city and rural divisions — will be revamped and repurposed to serve as the maintenance and operational hub for Mysuru's e-bus fleet.

Essential infrastructure is being installed, including maintenance bays, staff rest areas, rest rooms and access to drinking water. Most crucially, a dedicated battery charging station is being set up at the depot to support overnight charging after buses return after 8 pm.

In addition, three opportunity charging points will be installed at the city bus terminal to enable quick top-ups during emergencies.

"Mysuru is ready to embrace electric public transport in a big way. The tender process for 100 e-buses is nearing completion and route identification is well underway. Preparations at the Bannimantap Depot are progressing to ensure a smooth roll out," said H.T. Veeresh, Divisional Controller, Mysuru City Division.

With the combined efforts of KSRTC and local authorities, Mysuru is poised to become a greener, cleaner city with modern, sustainable public transport solutions.

To ensure smooth distribution, City Police were deployed at the venue. Only the first 250 parents were allowed inside Rangayana to collect the forms.

Activists demand night traffic ban

Members of Gandhadagudi Foundation protesting in front of Aranya Bhavan in city this morning against the proposal of lifting the night traffic ban via the Bandipur Tiger Reserve.

The Supreme Court imposed a night traffic ban (9 am to 6 am) on two national highways — NH-181 (Mysuru-Ooty Road) and NH-766 (formerly NH-212, Kollegal-Kozhikode) — that pass through the core of the Tiger Reserve after studies showed a high number of wildlife deaths due to roadkill. The ban only permits four buses, ambulances and emergency vehicles during restricted hours.

Environmentalists allege that the Congress high command is pressuring the Karnataka Government to lift the ban — a long-standing demand of residents in Wayanad, now represented in the Lok Sabha by Congress leader Priyanka Gandhi. Similar efforts were made when Rahul Gandhi held the seat.

Conservationists warn that lifting the ban would gravely threaten wildlife in this ecologically sensitive region. They argue that unregulated night traffic could fuel illegal activities such as the smuggling of timber, gravel, M-sand and boulders, while also increasing the risk of poaching.

In the memorandum, they emphasised the ban's crucial role in preserving the region's rich biodiversity and protecting local communities.

Reduction in roadkill

Between 2004 and 2007, before the implementation of the night traffic ban, the highway was a virtual graveyard for wildlife. Data revealed that during this period, 91 mammals from 14 species, 75 birds from 18 species and 56 reptiles from 16 species were killed on the road by speeding vehicles — a toll higher than that of poaching.

However, since the night traffic ban's enforcement, the situation has dramatically improved, with roadkill numbers dropping to just nine between 2022 and 2024, marking a 90 percent reduction.

Concerns have arisen following attempts by neighbouring Kerala to pressure authorities into lifting the ban, allegedly violating a Supreme Court order.

Environmentalists have warned that such a move could pave the way for illegal activities, including poaching, drug smuggling and gold trafficking, while also increasing the risk of human-animal conflicts in forest-adjacent areas. They have urged to maintain the night traffic ban and protect the region's fragile ecosystem and community livelihoods.

Huliyamma Temple Trust ups the ante; opposes DC's decision

Mysuru, Apr. 6 (BLU&BS)- Kyathamaranahalli Sri Huliyamma Temple Development Trust, convened a meeting at the temple premises this morning, only to vehemently oppose the reopening of Arabic school by Aleema Sadiya Education and Masjid-E-Siddique-E-Akbar Trust on Site No 1/2 and 1/3, on 6th Cross of Udayagiri (Gayathripuram 2nd Stage - Kyathamaranahalli).

That apart, neither Madrasa, Masjid nor any other activities be conducted at the disputed site. Instead, the status quo should be maintained, they said.

Advocate A.M. Bhaskar, who is the counsel for the Trust, said, that the locality being a sensitive place with a history of communal clashes, the City Police Commissioner had submitted a report on similar lines to the District Administration. However, the Deputy Commissioner without taking such serious views into consideration, has given his permission recently for reopening the Arabic School.

"We will continue to protest this decision of the District Administration, by approaching the competent authority and the High Court. We will also submit a memorandum to the Chief Minister, Home Minister and District Minister, to review the order to restore the school," said Bhaskar.

Chandramma mother of Raju, an RSS worker, who was murdered in March 2016, over the same dispute, also attended the meeting. She warned saying "No activities be allowed at the disputed site, as my son had to pay with his life."

About 500 to 600 people including women participated in the meeting. As a precautionary measure, the City Police had made elaborate security arrangements in and around the temple. Office-bearers of the Temple Trust Mahadev, M. Lokesh, Shivakumar, Bheeshma, Siddaiah, Nagaraja and others were present.

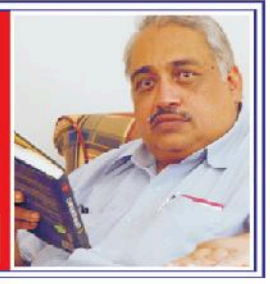
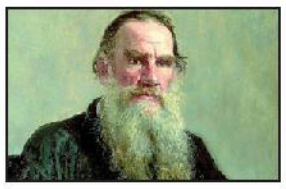
Over a cup of evening Tea



By Dr. K. Javeed Nayeem, MD

God Sees the Truth, But Waits!

Leo Tolstoy's merchant story, told by my class teacher, illustrates the very sad true story of a villager we are all reading in news today...



Leo Tolstoy

Dr. Javeed with teacher Albert Venny

Over the past three days, we are all reading in the papers, a very sad and gut-wrenching story of how a miserably poor and completely innocent villager Suresh, was wrongly accused of murdering his wife and was forced to spend two years in jail, until thankfully, a benevolent lawyer came to his rescue, in the guise of the proverbial Good Samaritan and got him released on bail.

Suresh

But despite this much deserved relief, the innocent man had to bear not only the hardship of two years of life as a prisoner but also bear the heavy cross of being labelled a shameful murderer, for five long years.

He had to bear the pain of his own two young children firmly believing that he had cruelly murdered their mother and therefore calling him a heartless brute.

Yes, according to the man's own statement, every time he was allowed to speak to them on phone from the prison, they used to question him about why he had done something so cruel. What could be more painful, for the three of them? And, now that the truth is finally out, the wrongly accused man may soon be exonerated of the crime he never committed. But, can our legal system, which is giving him the justice he deserves, give him back what those five long years have robbed from him, for no fault of his? It appears that while he was in jail for two years, he was made to work as a cook and prepare food for all his fellow inmates, a job he used to do, only while shedding tears over his sad fate.

Can our social justice system wipe away his pain and anguish? Will all those responsible for his agony, give him something in return, sufficient enough to take away his hurt, even if they are brought to justice or atone for their sins? I think not. It is just impossible.

Here, I am reminded of an incident from my childhood which I feel very aptly highlights how justice delayed, is indeed justice denied and how imperfect and inadequate our legal system is, irrespective of where it is in this world.

It is rightly said that the law is not a surgeon's knife that can cut with precision, but it is only an axe that can at best, hack away, with roughness!

Years ago, in the year 1968, when I was a student of the ninth standard in the St. Philomena's High School here in our city, I was very touched by a story our class teacher, Mr. Albert Venny, told us, to make a point. No, he was not teaching us English, because he was our science teacher and all he taught us formally in that capacity, was science and nothing else.

But that day, he taught us something more valuable than any topic, from any stream of science. And, he did it because he caught one of my classmates doing something wrong and then telling a lie to implicate another for what he had himself done.

Actually, our teacher was not so upset with the petty wrong that his student had done, but he was very saddened that one of his students could have gone to the extent of blaming another, completely innocent classmate. That is why perhaps, he decided to tell us a story with a strong moral message, which he felt would leave us all impressed enough to be truthful, all through our lives.

And, he did it with such determination and resolve that he spent a whole class period of forty-five minutes, stressing on the importance of being truthful and honest, instead of teaching us science on that day.

And, looking back on what he told us years ago, I feel he chose the right parable to succeed in his endeavour, to impress our young minds. I say this because the impact that his one class has had on me, over all my years, has not left me to this day! And, what he told us that day was a story called, God Sees the Truth, But Waits, written by the famed Russian writer, Leo Tolstoy (Sept. 9, 1828 - Nov. 7, 1910).

While some view Tolstoy as the most outstanding embodiment of literature, others see him as the incarnation of the world's conscience, but for almost all who knew him or read his works, he was not just one of the greatest writers who ever lived, but a living symbol of the search for life's meaning.

Although Tolstoy being a very well-known writer, needs no introduction to most of you who are reading this article, I am reproducing a summary of his short story here, to illustrate how appropriately and closely it matches the very sad true story we are all reading in the news today. Those who have not read it would do well to read it now and those who have already read it would do well to read it once again, for its very touching profoundness!

In the Russian town of Vladimir, Ivan Dmitritch Aksyonov lives as a successful and prosperous merchant with his wife and young children. One summer, as he sets off for Nizhny Fair to sell his goods, Aksyonov's wife warns him not to go, for she has had a nightmare in which he returned with grey hair.

Aksyonov laughs off her concern and interprets the dream as a sign of luck. Halfway to his destination, he encounters a fellow merchant, whom he befriends. The two stop for the night at an inn, where they have tea together and sleep in adjoining rooms.

To avoid the summer heat and tackle a long day, Aksyonov rises before dawn and sets off with his horses and coachman while the air is still cool. After twenty-five miles, while he stops to feed his horses, two soldiers, accompanied by an official, arrive and question him about his relationship with the merchant he met the previous night, before revealing to him that the merchant was found dead, with his throat slit.

Since the two rooms were next to each other, it seems only natural that Aksyonov might know something. Aksyonov trembles in fear when the official searches his belongings and retrieves a bloodstained knife from his clothes. The men arrest Aksyonov and after a summary trial he is imprisoned.

His wife visits him in jail and faints at the sight of him dressed as a criminal. He says they must petition the czar, to which she says she has already tried but to no avail. She then softly asks him if he did not indeed commit the murder?

Aksyonov, while pleading innocence, weeps miserably, feeling deeply pained that she too has doubts about his innocence. He puts his faith in God and accepts his sentencing and ceremonial flogging. He is then sent to work in the mines in Siberia and is given the task of making leather shoes for the miners.

Over twenty-six long years in Siberia, Aksyonov transforms into a pious old man. His hair turns white, his beard grows long, he walks with difficulty, and he never laughs. He prays often and, among other prisoners, he develops a reputation as a meek and fair man and they treat him as their spiritual guide.

One day, a newly arrived inmate named Makar Semyonich, who is about the same age as Aksyonov and from the same hometown, gives an account of what brought him to Siberia. He was suspected of stealing a horse, when in reality he had only borrowed it. Nevertheless, he was unjustly convicted and imprisoned. But the man confides in Aksyonov and tells him that the sad irony of life is that he had gotten away with doing something much worse, earlier in his life, while he was now being punished for a petty crime, he never committed.

Aksyonov suspects that this was the man who was responsible for framing him. He questions Semyonich, who cryptically responds in a way that confirms his suspicion. Aksyonov remembers everything he has lost and is plunged into misery and he longs for a way to get revenge but resolves to stay away from the man or even look in his direction.

After two weeks, unable to sleep, he strolls the prison when he discovers Semyonich digging a tunnel to escape from there. Soldiers discover the tunnel the next day. The governor arrives to question prisoners, none of whom admit to knowing anything about the tunnel.

After wrestling with his desire for vengeance, Aksyonov declines to say what he knows about Semyonich's involvement in digging the tunnel. That night, Semyonich is overcome with remorse over Aksyonov's goodness and confesses his guilt to him. He falls to his knees and begs for forgiveness, promising to confess to the crimes so that Aksyonov will go free.

To this, the old man replies that his life is already over and he has nowhere to go. At the sight of Semyonich's tears, Aksyonov weeps himself and he feels a lightness enter his body. He no longer desires to go home or leave the prison and he only wants to die in peace.

Semyonich confesses to the governor and when the officials arrive at Aksyonov's cell the next day to acquit and release him, they find him lying dead!

MCC faces cash crunch as State dumps wage burden onto ULBs

Mysuru, Apr. 6 (RK&TRR)- The Mysuru City Corporation (MCC), already grappling with severe financial constraints, has been dealt another blow with fresh directives from the State Government that further strain its dwindling resources.

Despite completing various civic projects years ago, MCC still owes hundreds of crores of rupees in pending payments to civil contractors.

Now, a circular dated Mar. 18 from the Directorate of Municipal Administration has directed all Urban Local Bodies (ULBs) to meet key financial obligations — such as wages of cleaners, loaders and other contract workers — entirely from their own sources of revenue.

In a follow-up order issued on Mar. 20, the Government further instructed ULBs to pay salaries of permanent employees based on the 7th Pay Commission recommendations, using funds from the 15th State Finance Commission (SFC) corpus. This is to be implemented only after revising local taxes.

These back-to-back directives come at a time when MCC is already struggling to maintain basic civic services, including underground drainage maintenance, road repairs, park and crematorium upkeep, street lighting, garbage clearance, disbursement of welfare benefits to senior citizens and specially-abled persons, reimbursement of medical bills for civic workers, maintenance of its main office and nine zonal offices and payments towards rented MCC vehicles.

The latest government order, requiring MCC to bear wage expenses for loaders, cleaners, drivers and other staff from its income, has pushed the civic body to the brink of a deepening financial crisis.

The Government order directing local bodies to pay employee wages from their resources is a glaring sign of the State's financial bankruptcy. It is ironic that the same Government, which has increased the cost of essentials like milk, petrol, diesel and liquor, making life harder for the common man, has emptied the State Treasury to fund its guarantee schemes. Now, it doesn't even have money to pay its employees.

Miscreants snatch gold chain from woman in Mandi Mohalla

Mysuru, Apr. 6 (RK&KS)- After making a futile attempt to snatch the gold chain of a woman, who was sweeping in front of her house on Veeranagere Road in Mandi Mohalla, the scooter-borne chain snatchers in just 15 minutes managed to snatch a gold chain from a woman walker on Ratan Singh Road in the same locality on Friday early morning.

In the early morning of Friday, two miscreants on a white coloured scooter, attempted to snatch the 40-gram gold mangalya chain from 37-year-old C.N. Shilpa, who was sweeping in front of her house on Veeranagere Mantap Road in Mandi Mohalla at about 6.25 am.

As Shilpa held on to her gold chain and screamed for help, the scooter-borne chain snatchers sped away. Though the gold chain broke into two pieces, both the pieces remained with Shilpa as she had held them tightly.

In just 15 minutes time, the chain snatchers were successful in snatching the 35-gram gold chain of 53-year-old Lalitha, who was walking on Ratan Singh Cross Road in the same locality at about 6.45 am. When Lalitha screamed for help, public gave a chase to nab the chain snatchers but in vain as the chain snatchers sped away via Sawday Road and Old RMC Junction.

According to the complaint, the chain snatchers, who had come on a white coloured scooter were about 25 years old. While the rider was wearing a red, white and blue coloured pullover T-shirt, the pillion rider was wearing a red jerkin.

Separate cases have been registered at Lashkar and Mandi Police Stations. Mandi Inspector Nagesh and staff conducted a spot mahazar and have collected footages from CCTV cameras installed in and around the spot of crime besides launching a hunt to nab the chain snatchers.

WORD OF THE DAY

Hew

Pronunciation: HYOO (verb)
Meaning: Hew is commonly used with to mean "to conform to or adhere to (something)." Hew on its own has several meanings having to do with cutting or shaping with a sharp tool, such as an ax. Both hewed and hewn are past participles of hew.
Origin: Without context, the contrasting meanings of hew may seem arbitrary. What does shaping something with an ax have to do with conforming or adhering to something? If you're not a lumberjack, that's okay, we'll explain. The connection lies in the woodworking phrase "hew to the line," where line refers to the mark along the length of a log indicating where to chop in order to shape a beam. "Hewing to the line," literally, is cutting along the mark — adhering to it — until the side of the log is squared. In the 1800s, "hew to the line" was used figuratively as half of the idiom "hew to the line, let the chips fall where they may," to advise someone to stay true to a course of action, whatever the consequences may be. Over time the latter half of the phrase has been, well, hewn off.
Example: "The play hewed closely to the original script, with a few splashes of local colour." — Chelsea Edgar, The New Yorker, 31 Jan. 2025

THE ODD WORD

Xenophobia

Fear of strangers or foreigners.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Fishy Smell

Meaning: The phrase 'Fishy Smell' or "Something Smells Fishy" is used when something seems suspicious.
Origin: The origin of the term 'Fishy smell' alludes to the fact that while fresh fish have no noticeable odour, rotten or stale ones really stink. It first came into use in the early 1800s.
Example: "When I heard his account of the car crash, I noticed a bit of a fishy smell; he was obviously not telling the truth."
